Automatically forward messages to another e-mail account

Assistance > Outlook 2003 > Finding and Managing Items > Managing Messages by Using Rules

▶ Show All

Applies to

Microsoft Office Outlook® 2003

By using a rule that you create, Outlook can examine each message that you receive for certain characteristics and then automatically forward or redirect any message that matches the characteristics to another e-mail account. This account can represent a person or distribution list (DL).

The differences — and similarities — between automatically forwarding and redirecting an incoming message are as follows:

- Message forwarding When a rule automatically forwards a message you receive, it leaves a copy of the message in your Inbox or in the folder to which the message was originally delivered. The rule then adds the designation "FW:" to the beginning of the Subject line, changes the message formatting, and then forwards the message to the account specified by the rule. The recipient represented by the account also sees that the message came from you.
- Message redirection When a rule automatically redirects a message you receive, it also leaves a copy in your Inbox or in the folder to which the message was originally delivered. The rule then sends the message, unchanged, to the account specified by the rule. To the recipient, the message appears as though it came directly from the original sender. There is no indication that the message was delivered by way of your account.

There are many reasons why redirection might be preferable to forwarding or vice versa. Suppose that Pia, a sales representative for Contoso Pharmaceuticals, is transferring several accounts to Jonas, a colleague who manages accounts in an adjacent sales district. Instead of informing each client affected by the transfer, Pia creates a rule that redirects all messages from those clients to Jonas. Without the slightest miscommunication, Jonas smoothly picks up where Pia left off and continues to develop the business relationships with her former clients.

▶ Manually forward a message to another e-mail account

▼ Automatically forward incoming messages to another e-mail account

Use this method to keep a copy of each message that is forwarded by the rule.

Note The following steps explain how to create and apply a rule to your Inbox or one of your private folders. To create a rule for a public folder, you must do so from the folder's Properties dialog box.

1. In Mail, in the Navigation Pane, on the Tools menu, click Rules and Alerts.
2. If you have more than one e-mail account in your Outlook e-mail profile, in the Apply changes to this folder list, click the Inbox to which you want the rule to apply.
3. Click New Rule.
4. Click Start from a blank rule.
5. Under Step 1: Select when messages should be checked, click Check messages when they arrive, and then click Next.
6. Under Step 1: Select condition(s), select the check box next to each condition that you want the incoming message to match.
7. Under Step 2: Edit the rule description, click the underlined value that corresponds to the condition, and then select or type the necessary information.
 - ▶ Example: Forward every message you receive from Katarina Larsson
8. Click Next.

- Troubleshoot 550, 553, or relay-prohibited errors

9. Under Step 1: Select action(s), select the forward it to people or distribution list check box.
10. Under Step 2: Edit the rule description, click people or distribution list.
11. In one of the address lists, double-click the name or distribution list to which you want to forward the messages, and then click OK.
12. Click Next twice.
13. Under Step 1: Specify a name for this rule, type a name.
To run this rule on the messages that are already in your folders, select the Run this rule now on messages already in "folder" check box.
To apply this rule to all your e-mail accounts and Inboxes, select the Create this rule on all accounts check box.
14. Click Finish.

▶ Automatically redirect incoming messages to another e-mail account

Caution Don't automatically forward or redirect messages you receive to an e-mail address that is outside your organization. After the messages leave the protection of your corporate network, they can be diverted or intercepted by unintended recipients. In fact, many organizations regard the automatic forwarding of messages to an external address a violation of their policy on network and computer use.

▶ How do I know if an e-mail address is outside my organization?

Notes

You can forward or redirect any message that you receive — unless the sender used Information Rights Management (IRM) to prevent recipients from sharing the contents of the message with other people. Only the original sender can remove the restricted permission on a message.

You can create e-mail messages with restricted permission using Information Rights Management only in Microsoft Office Professional Edition 2003 and Microsoft Office Outlook 2003.

2 problems....first, the MDB extension of the database was not changed and it was stripped from the zip file. Second, the ZIP was not changed to ZIT so the virus software looked inside the zip file.

Do the following:

- Step 1: copy your database and rename the copy to mikedod.mdd
- Step 2: zip mikedod.mdd to a filename like "formike.zip"
- Step 3: rename formike.zip to formike.zit
- Step 4: email that zit file to me.

Thanks

Subject: FW: Economic Impact - Appendix O -- Changes needed to Broadway San Diego, CA

Duke,
These changes need to be made to Appendix O. I tried to make these changes earlier but was rebuffed. The Commissioners' Broadway (San Diego, CA) recommendation will not realign or eliminate jobs in San Diego MSA and the actual numbers need to be updated to reflect latest certified employment data.

The current job numbers for the Navy Broadway complex are:
65 Military
1,131 Civilians
50 Contractors

Thanks,
Brian

Subject: RE: Economic Impact - Appendix O

Jim,

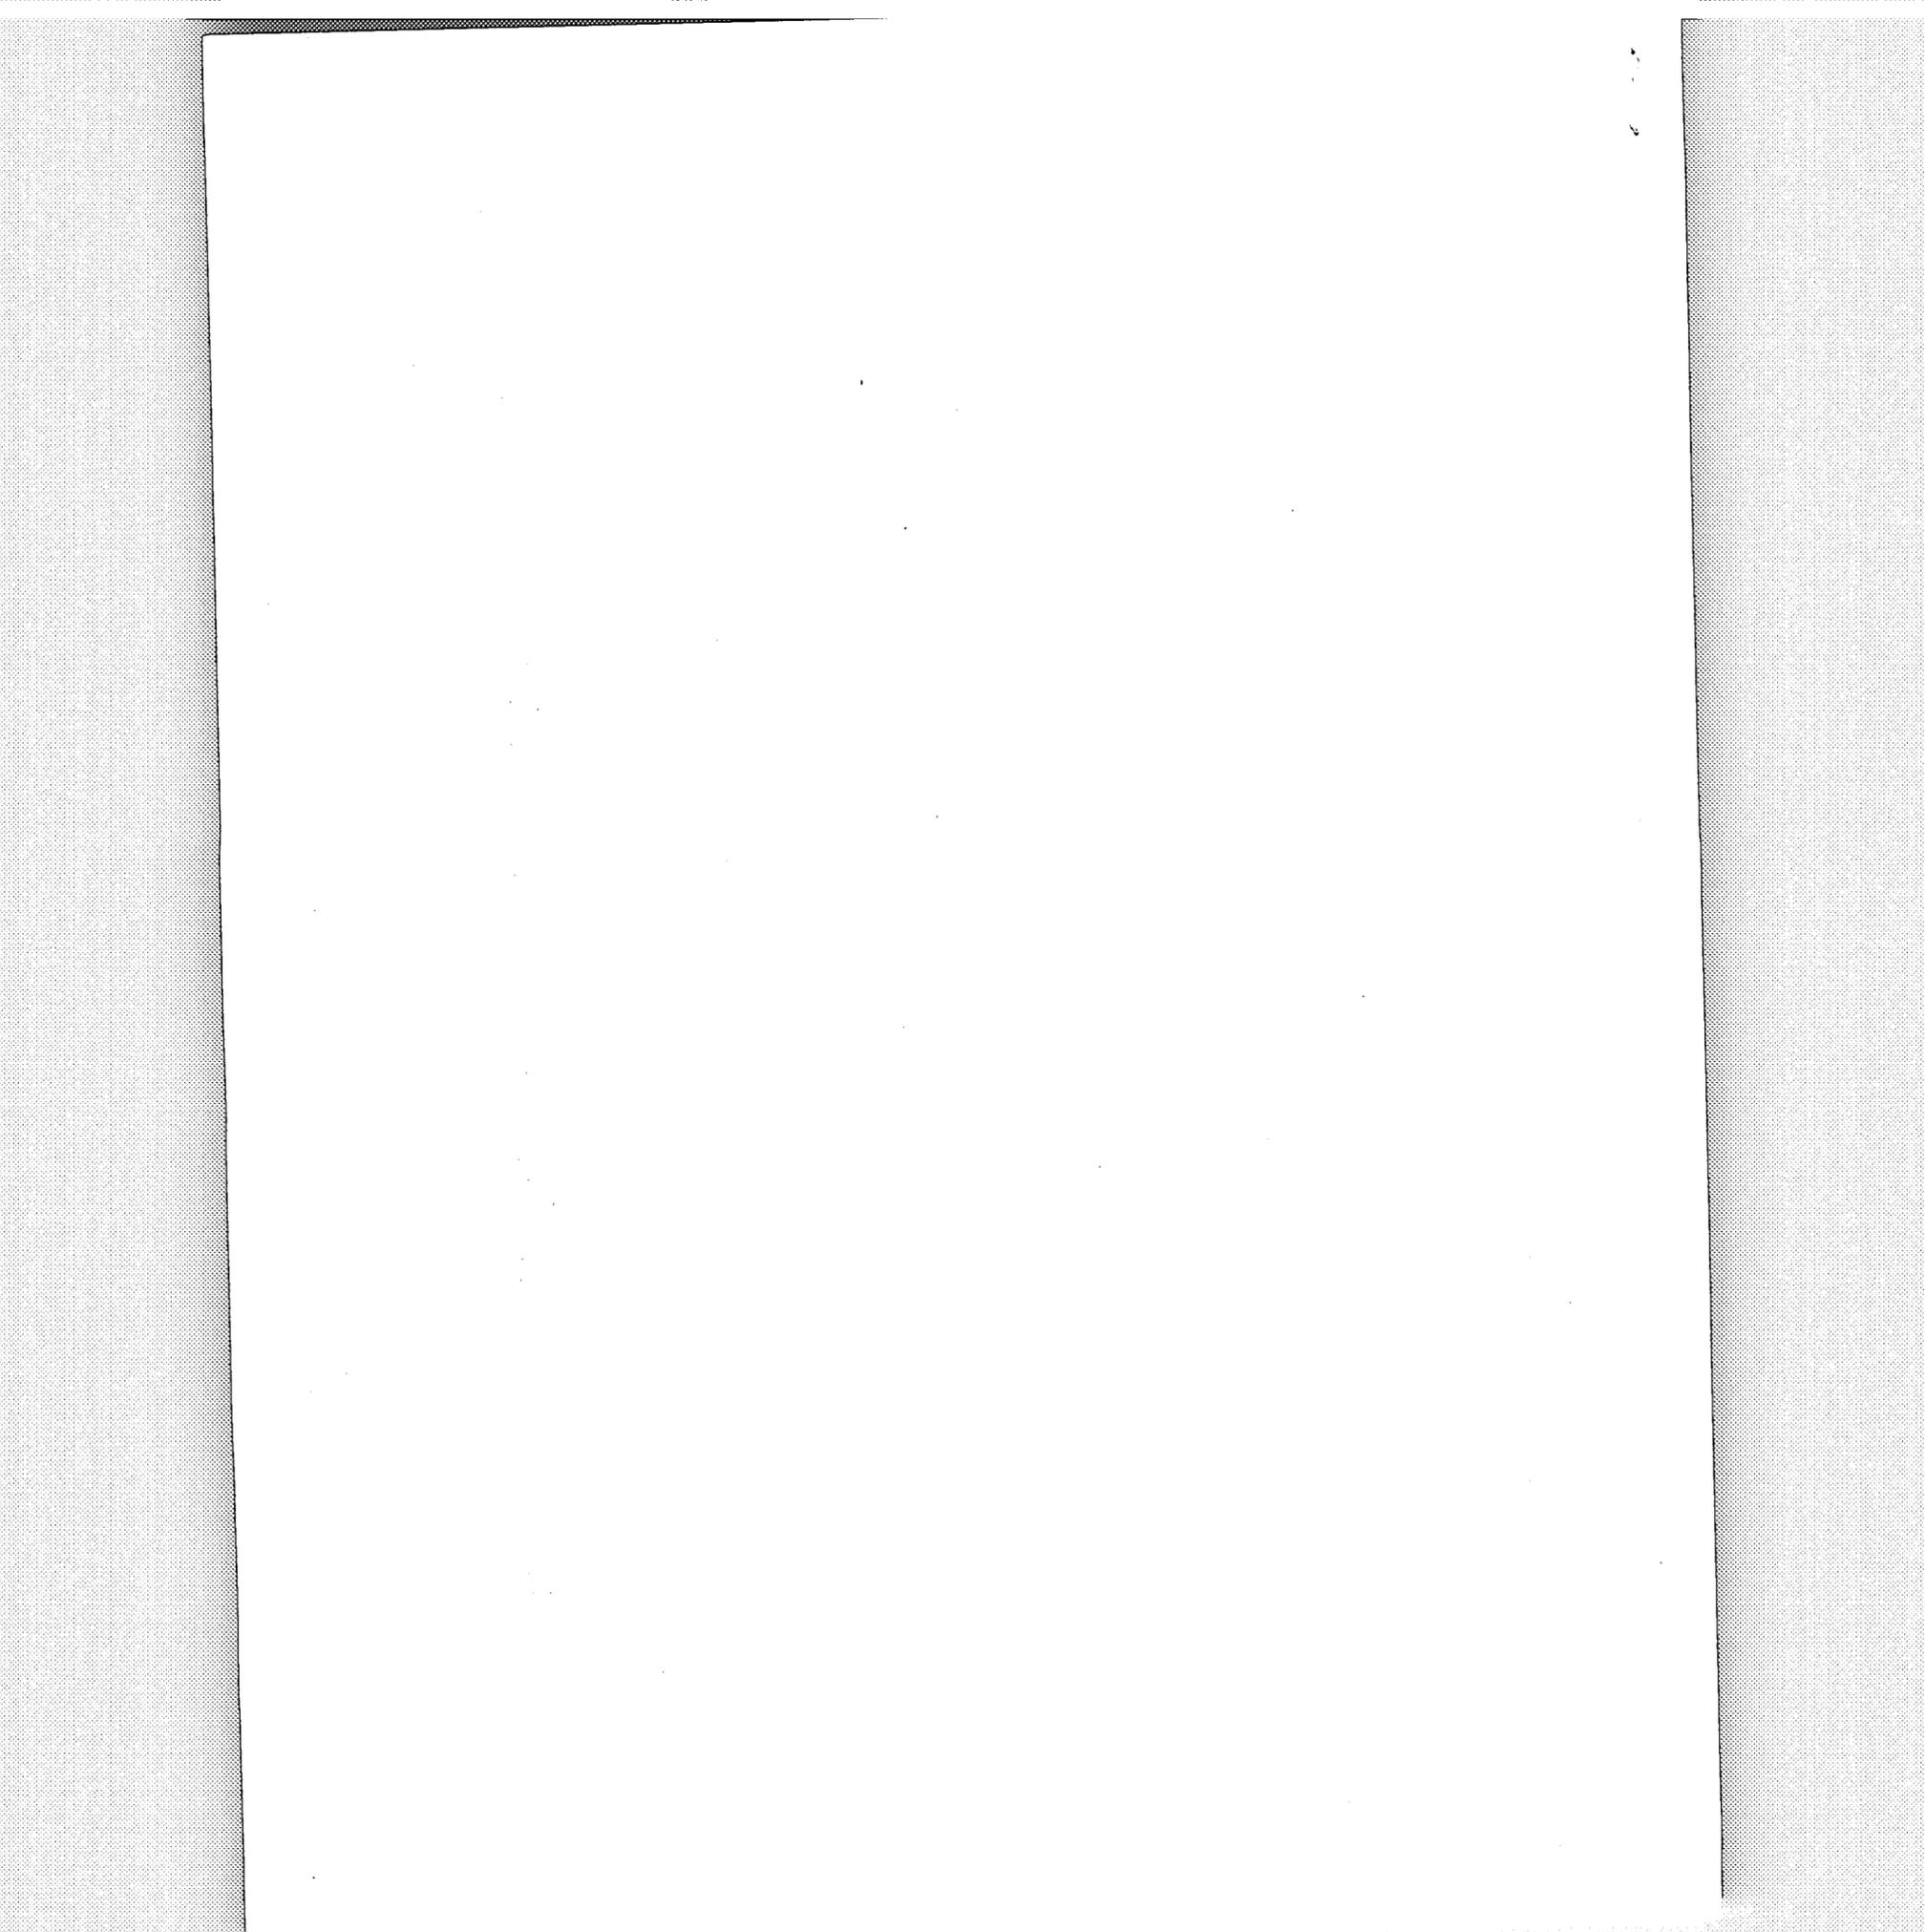

The numbers for Pascagoula are correct but the numbers for Broadway are not. First, the appendix indicates the Commission recommendation for Broadway would result in job losses in San Diego which is neither the expression or intent of the Commissioners, and second, the actual numbers need to be updated. The actual job numbers for Broadway complex are:
65 Military
1,131 Civilians
50 Contractors.

Also, it appeared the "Appendix O" on S drive is a PDF file, so I'll also send these changes on to Duke and Bob?

Appendix O has been changed to more correctly reflect the actual job changes. In all probability the entire Appendix in the report may be replaced. Please have your analysts review the new Appendix O which is on the S drive. See Duke if you have any changes/questions. The analysts weren't as involved as they should have been during the final deliberations, primarily because of the timing and the emphasis on mil value. However, we have a chance to get it right, so let's do it now. Everything should be completed by noon on Thursday - after that the door is closed to changes on the revised Appendix O.
