Gentlemen:

This concerns the possible relocation of the Sustainment Systems Group from Gunter Air Force Base in Montgomery, Alabama, to Hanscom Air Force Base in Massachusetts.

Apart from the economic impact such a relocation would have for Montgomery, I'm concerned about putting all our eggs in one basket. At a time when terrorists around the world want to do us in, I believe it is far better for our country to not put too much military technology in one place. To me, some duplication is needed if we are at risk from having a site destroyed.

Certainly, I don't have all the facts, but I'd hate to see us do away with a facility on a given location only to regret it later.

Sincerely,

R. E. Lee
