Dear Honorable James H. Bilbray:

I am writing to urge you to reconsider the closing of Cannon Air Force Base.

The support for this critical military base is overwhelming in the surrounding communities. This support enables CAFB to have the ability to fly supersonic during training mission, ample space to accommodate surge force requirements, housing in the communities, and unencumbered by local building.

The closing of Cannon will have a negative impact on the educational and economic opportunities in the region. The university would lose valuable students and staff in such a process. The economic impact would be dire for the entire area. We are a rural, small community unable to withstand such an economic devastation and community loss.

We have done everything we can to make military personnel and families part of our community for over 50 years. Cannon does not fit the criteria provided for base closure and its appearance on such a list appears to be politically motivated.

I urge you to rise above partisanship and consider CAFB on its own merit. When you couple the mission of the base in terms of military readiness with the impact on the community, hopefully you will remove it from the list.

We hope that in the weeks to come you are able to visit CAFB and surrounding communities. We would welcome the opportunity to share the true picture with you.

Cordially,

Janet E. Roehl

Dear Brigadier General Sue E. Turner,

I am writing to urge you to reconsider the closing of Cannon Air Force Base.

The impact for this critical military base is overwhelming in the surrounding communities. This airport enables CAFB to have the ability to fly supersonic during training mission, ample space to accommodate surge force requirements, housing in the communities, and encouragement of local business.

The closing of Cannon will have a negative impact on the educational and economic opportunities in the region. The university would lose valuable students and staff in such a process. The economic impact would be dire for the entire area. We are a rural, small community unable to withstand such an economic devastation and community loss.

We have done everything we can to make military personnel and families part of our community for over 50 years. Cannon does not fit the criteria provided for base closure and its appearance on such a list appears to be knowingly constructed.

I urge you to rise above partisanship and consider CAFB on its own merit when you consider the mission of the base in terms of military readiness with its impact on the community, hopefully you will remove it from the list.

We hope that in the weeks to come you are able to visit CAFB and surrounding communities. We would welcome the opportunity to share the true picture with you.

Dear Admiral Harold W. Gehman Jr.,

I am writing to urge you to reconsider the closing of Cannon Air Force Base.

The support for this crucial military base is overwhelming in the surrounding communities. This support enables CAFB to have the ability to fly personnel during training mission, ample space to accommodate surge force requirements, housing in the communities, and unencumbered by local building.

The closing of Cannon will have a negative impact on the educational and economic opportunities in the region. The university would lose valuable students and staff in such a process. The economic impact would be dire for the entire area. We are a rural, small community unable to withstand such an economic devastation and community loss.

We have done everything we can to move military personnel and families part of our community for over 50 years. Cannon does not fit the criteria provided for base closure and its appearance on such a list appears to be politically motivated.

I urge you to rise above partisanship and consider CAFB on its own merit. When you couple the mission of the base in terms of military readiness with its impact on the community, hopefully you will remove it from the list.

We hope that in the weeks to come you are able to visit CAFB and surrounding communities. We could welcome the opportunity to share the true picture with you.

Dear General James T. Hill:

I am writing to urge you to reconsider the closing of Cannon Air Force Base.

The support for this critical military base is overwhelming in the surrounding communities. This support enables CAFB to have the ability to fly supersonic during training mission, ample space to accommodate surge force requirements, housing in the communities, and unencumbered by local buildings.

The closure of Cannon will have a negative impact on the educational and economic opportunities in the region. The university would lose valuable students and staff in such a process. The economic impact would be dire for the entire area. We are a rural, small community unable to withstand such an economic devestation and recovery is less.

We have done everything we can to make military personnel and families part of our community for over 60 years. Cannon does not fit the criteria provided for base closure and its appearance on such a list appears to be politically motivated.

I urge you to rise above partisanship and consider CAFB on its own merit. When you complete the mission of the base in terms of military readiness with the impact on the community, hopefully you will remove it from the list.

We hope that in the weeks to come you are able to visit CAFB and surrounding communities. We would welcome the opportunity to share the true picture with you.

Dear Honorable Samuel K. Skinner:

I am writing to urge you to reconsider the closing of Cannon Air Force Base.

The support for this crucial military base is overwhelming in the surrounding communities. This support enables CAFB to have the ability to fly supersonic during training mission, ample space to accommodate surge force requirements, housing in the communities, and unencumbered by 'loco' buildings.

The closing of Cannon will have a negative impact on the educational and economic opportunities in the region. The university would lose valuable students and staff in such a process. The economic impact would be dire for the entire area. We are a rural, small community unable to withstand such an economic devastation and cannot afford loss.

We have done everything we can to make military personnel and families part of our community for over 50 years. Cannon does not fit the criteria prioritized for base closure and its appearance on such a list appears to be politically motivated.

I urge you to rise above partisanship and consider CAFB on its own merit. When you couple the mission of the base in terms of military readiness with the impact on the community, hopefully you will remove it from the list.

We hope that in the weeks to come you are able to visit CAFB and surrounding communities. We would welcome the opportunity to share the true picture with you.

Dear Honorable Phillip Doyle

I am writing to urge you to reconsider the closing of Cannon Air Force Base.

The support for this critical military base is overwhelming in the surrounding communities. This supports Angeles CAFB to have the ability to fly supersonic during training mission, ample space to accommodate surge force requirements, ensuring no threat to communities, and unencumbered by local building.

The closing of Cannon will have a negative impact on the educational and economic opportunities in the region. The university would lose valuable students and staff in such a process. The economic impact would be dire for the entire area. We are a rural, small community unable withstand such an economic degradation and community loss.

We have done everything we can to make military personnel and families part of our community for over 50 years. Cannon does not fit the criteria provided for base closure and its appearance on such a list deserves to be immediately eliminated.

I urge you to rise above partisanship and consider CAFB on its own merit. When you review the mission of the base in terms of military readiness with the impact on the community, hopefully you will remove it from the list.

We hope that in the weeks to come you are able to visit CAFB and surrounding communities. We would welcome the opportunity to share the true facts with you.
