Dear Sirs:

Cannon Air Force Base in Clovis, New Mexico should not be on your list to close.

Clovis and Portales have always had an excellent relationship with Cannon Air Force Base. We welcome the base, the young families and young trainees here.

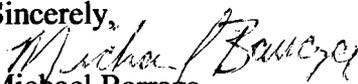

There is a large population in the portion of East New Mexico and West Texas of retired military. These people provide a much needed input to our communities. They are dependent on Cannon Air Force Base to provide their healthcare, grocery shopping and all other services. To lose Cannon means we lose them too!

There have been numerous times Curry County and the local community has purchased land needed by CAFB and given it to the Air Force. We support the base morally, financially, spiritually and above all, consistently.

The Melrose Bombing Range is seconds from Cannon. This saves fuel for bombing practice. Also, we have space and facilities to accommodate joint war-fighting, training and readiness. Cannon offers ample space/ramp space to facilitate surge force requirements. New Mexico has excellent weather to support training missions. We are in the planning stages of the New Mexico Training Range Initiative to offer pilots the ability to fly supersonic.

With all we offer and share together with Cannon Air Force Base, it is just not a base that should close.

Sincerely,

Michael Barraza
Clovis, New Mexico
